

Partisipasi masyarakat dalam perencanaan program pembangunan desa mandiri (PDM) di Kecamatan Long Ikis Kabupaten Paser Provinsi Kalimantan Timur

Deskripsi Lengkap: <https://lib.ui.ac.id/detail?id=132119&lokasi=lokal>

Abstrak

This research is aimed to clarify describes how does the society participation in arranging of Independent Village Development Planning Program , advantage and disadvantage factors that influence society participants in arranging of Independent Village Development Planning Program needed, and strategic description in increasing the society participants in arranging of Independent Village Development planning Program in Long Ikis, Paser . This research used descriptive -qualitative design. Data of this research was based on the paper sheet of the interview and documentation sources. Technique purposive and snowball used in determination of informan. Analysis was done using interactive model, such as reduction, data review, and conclusion. descriptive strategic formula was used SWOT analysis instrument. This research revealed the following findings , generally, society participants of Long Ikis residents in arranging of Independent Village Development Planning Program were bias/partiality. Disadvantage factor that describe the weakness of program ,such as,limited time, work ,fund, information,socialization, communication,and departement oriented. Advantage factor that support the program likely, benefit , interest and territori. Strategic description in improving the society participants in arranging of Independent Village Development planning Program in Long Ikis , Paser using maximized unit in the resident with the appropriate development fund in Paser, revitalized social economic in decreasing the poorness, organized the society norm toward in varying government policy, and effectively communication approve between government and employment in the palm plantation sector.