Abstrak

In the free market era., Indonesia (as a developing country, which has dependency to foreign investment) is under pressured by foreign investor including in the matters of regulation in the labor Held. the pressing is done through the relation between standardization and international trade, which is Called social clause, the place where we can dismiss the developing country's chance to use low wages rules and SOR law enforcement as cooperative advantages which at lest eliminate the advantages from international made. Indonesia has to find out the way to solve the two big problems. First, how to make all the parties have same position in the production process for achievement of company progress and mud, how to create harmonization of law in labor Hold between ASEAN member countries in the globalization era for preventing company relocation among ASEAN member countries themselves.
