Abstrak

Feminist politics is a perpetual investment a just civilisation. For a long time feminist politics has known that a structure a structure of injustice is inherently located within the sociological bodconceptual body of a partiarchal system. Feminist politics needs more that just voluntary efforts for democracy. Rather, strong conceptual tool are needed that will enlighteen the dialectic transport of communication in a democratic system. Any feminist should watch and guard, as well as, cynically and radically monitor the progress of the newly-elected president-wether will bring a mandate of equality or not. A short-term strategy has been invested to block the New Order regime from taking control : and a long-term strategy shall be invested to guarantee a systems of equality in the new cabinet.
