Action learning: organization development

Marquardt, Michael J., author

Deskripsi Lengkap: https://lib.ui.ac.id/detail?id=20429010&lokasi=lokal

----

Abstrak

This Infoline defines action learning as a group effort that involves solving real world problems through the use of acquired learning and implementing systems-wide solutions. It discusses why this process works and the benefits to organizations that use this technique. It features brief case studies from Whirlpool, National Semiconductor, General Electric, and Cigna International Property and Casualty Corporation.