This thesis is a written report of the process of increasing the productivity of a micro business named RELITE with the help of to total product conceptand marketing in social media specifically Instagram. RELITE has been standing as a business for years but has faced defeat several years ago. Shadowed by trauma, the owner of the business wishes for RELITE to run again with new concept that is more up-to-date. The concept building started by the making of its brand, and setting the production cycle. The process itself started from making logo and identity set then building the method of production via the fashion production cycle. Instagram also made for starting the brand awareness building.
