Abstrak

In democracy sytem, political party has important roles. In principle, pollitical party is a breath of democracy itself. But in democracy, transition in Indonesia, political party has alienation phase from society. Besides, regeneration and internal conflict has thrown political parties into deep troubles. Nevertheless, there is an increasing tendency that political parties have become vehicle for those who want to be a president, governor, mayor or region head. They used political parties to get involved in natonal or regional election. In regards of this tendency, it is important to bring the political parties back to their function as democracy foundation by upholding political education and good governance as politial vehicle in a democracy system.
