Abstrak

While the past decade saw China's supercharged economy accelerate past Japan to become the world's second-largest, the coming decade is expected to see China led by Xi and his team move towards catching up the United States as the world's top economic force. Who are the people that will guide China through its challenges at home and on the global stage? This book aims to provide the reader with a comprehensive insight into the men, and the tiny handful of women, who are going to be charting that course.
