ABSTRACT
The focus of this study is to analyze the effect of sales promotion on purchase intention of The Body Shop Product. To measure sales promotion, we used four dimensions namely incentives, utilitarian benefit, hedonic benefit and temporarily which is based on the scale developed by Schimp 2003 and Chandon et al. 2000 . To measure purchase intention, we used the 5 item scale which is based on the scale developed by Schiffman and Kanuk 2008 . This is a quantitative research with data collective using questionnaires distributed to 100 respondents aged 17-35 years, living in the Jabodetabek area, knowing The Body Shop sales promotion and had never bought The Body Shop's product. The results show that there is a significant positive relation between sales promotion on purchase intention in The Body Shop. The researcher suggest that the marketers need to understand what promotional tool works better at a given promotional benefit from the perspective of the consumer reaction.
