ABSTRAK

Sistem patriarki di Korea Selatan masih melekat hingga abad ke-21 dan hal tersebut merupakan penyebab dari munculnya kasus diskriminasi terhadap perempuan dalam kehidupan keluarga, khususnya antara hubungan suami dan istri. Diskriminasi tersebut dapat dicontohkan dengan adanya sikap ketidakpedulian atas peran istri dan kekerasan seksual dalam rumah tangga. Perempuan yang dipaksa untuk bungkam akhirnya melakukan perlawanan terhadap sistem patriarki yang diwakili oleh organisasi perempuan dan juga pemerintah. Kejadian tersebut tergambar melalui cerita pendek Domabaem karya Kim Young Ha yang dipublikasikan pada tahun 1997. Melalui pendekatan sosiologi sastra dan metode penelitian kepustakaan, penelitian ini membahas mengenai pemikiran perempuan Korea Selatan terhadap hubungan keluarga khususnya pada perilaku suami terhadap istri dalam cerita pendek Domabaem. Adapun tujuan penulisan jurnal ini adalah untuk membahas pemikiran perempuan terhadap keluarga terkait dengan hubungan suami dan istri.

ABSTRACT

The patriarchal system in South Korea manages to adhere tightly to the society until the 21st Century. It is caused by the gender discrimination toward women in families, particularly between husband and wife. The issue of gender discrimination usually revolves around ignorant behavior and domestic violence. Women who were forced to be passive have finally started to stand up against the patriarchal system through organizations and the government. This phenomenon was depicted through Domabaem, a South Korean literature written by Kim Young Ha, which was published in 1997. With the sociology of literature approach and literary survey method, the writer would like to do a research regarding South Korean women's thoughts in familial relationship, specifically the relationship between husband and wife through the South Korean literature, Domabaem. As for the purpose of this writing is to examine women's thoughts concerning families with regard to the husband wife relationship.
