The role of the village as the spearhead of the lowest government is to carry out all forms of policy while accommodating the needs of the community. Thus the right leader is needed to lead the village organization. For this reason the aim of this study was to analyze the leadership role of the lurah based on ten indicators of Henry Mintzberg's leadership role. The indicators are monitor, disseminator, spokesman, entrepreneur, disturbance handler, resource allocator, negotiator, liaison, leader and figurehead. This study uses a positivist approach and is included in descriptive research. The benefits of this study are purely, in terms of time, cross sectional and data collection through in-depth interviews with related sources, direct observation and literature.

Through the analysis carried out, it can be concluded that the Head of Dodo Supendi in carrying out his role in the Bambu Apus Environment in general has applied ten indicators of Mintzberg's leadership role. The results of the analysis explain that bad leadership roles are still found. Based on the spokesman's indicators relating to poor coordination with citizen devices. Indicators of disturbance handlers relate to rules that are violated. Indicators of resource allocators and negotiators relate to the unequal role of village heads for the regions they lead, especially in Musrenbang. As well as liaison and leader indicators related to abuse of authority carried out by their leaders. All indicators have shortcomings based on the analysis of the role of this lurah, but the researcher gives advice especially in leader indicators because it involves the integrity of regional apparatus in general.
