Abstrak

This article examines the state of play of the relations between the European Union and Indonesia. It proposes a review of the progress achieved since the publication in 2000 of the communication from the European Commission that is aimed at strengthening the relations between Indonesia and The European Union. It underlines that both the European Union and Indonesia have become stronger players in the international and regional arena. It also finds that the EU-Indonesia relations have intensified, diversified and given new perspectives for stronger EU-Indonesia partnership.
