

Identifikasi sektor-sektor potensial di kabupaten Bekasi

Ahmad Ridwan, author

Deskripsi Lengkap: <https://lib.ui.ac.id/detail?id=97026&lokasi=lokal>

Abstrak

Indonesia is the world 's largest archntelago with at population of roughly 224 million (Jubf 200 estimate), make it the world 's fourth most populous nation.

Indonesia people have diferent character and patient in communihi We as developing country, and it grown in entirely area from province to region.

'The progressive growth in this decade which possibly have different perception of occurrence and the developing as the real obligation involved if each region, central government as decision maker of policy and planning

The diferent condition in each region, influences the pattern and the form of development to appbi in each region. The policy which succesgiillv applied in one region is not necessary as successful region to others. U' we would develop one region, therefore the police should suitable regard the region condition such as problems, needs and potential.

A thorough research to know the potential and the prospect ofa certain district should be undertaken. the final result of the research has to be provided to the pertinent decision makers.

The district of Bekasi has to undertake similar research. As a strategic region located in the border of Jakarta, Bekasi with its excellent iiyrastructure and transportation could be _hirther developed as an advanced and integrated industrial business district.

Recently, there are five industrial business district in the region and oj"course_ there wi ll be more in line with jiirther development. All of these potentials which must be better studied and research. F nrther, the research also tries to answer .several aspects of Belrasi region development, and views on which .sectors need to be better developed and handle seriously. Evenlualbf, the results of the research would be put as o henclnnark and tools of .strategic decision making process.