Kendatipun demikian, dalam berkomunikasi, seringkali manusia menemukan kesulitan dan terkadang berujung pada kesalahpahaman. .....Language is a communication tool used in human life. Nevertheless, in communicating, people often find difficulty and sometimes, misunderstanding occurs. To express annoyance at the difficulty or misunderstanding in communicating, swearing words are used. However, in reality, swearing words are not only used to express annoyance or anger, but also intimacy, especially in a friendship. This study examines the function and types of swearing words and equivalence of translation in German and Indonesian subtitles. The research was conducted using a qualitative method through literature study with a corpus data on German and Indonesian subtitles from the first season of the Netflix series entitled How to Sell Drugs Online (Fast) by Philipp Käßbohrer and Matthias Murmann. The results of this study, using Androutsopoulos' theory (1998) regarding the function and types of swearing words and the equivalence theory of Nida and Taber (1982), shows that there are swearing words that have different functions and types, and there are also translations that are equivalent and not yet equivalent.
